

I'm not a robot

They say it started falling apart three years ago and now the One landlord said she feels like the city isn't doing enough to control the problem. Non-profit looks to demolish nearly 800 City making dent in demolishing Agents said they pulled cats out of couch cushions and bed frames that they had clawed through, and there was even one cat inÂ ... Boardman, Ohio residents battling A revitalization project to bring new business requires the city to purchase and tear down several occupied The money will go toward community stabilization programs and demolishing First Ward Councilwoman Annie Gillam expressed support for the idea, provided no one gets kicked out of their